We really enjoy brewing with rye. It has a dry, spicy characteristic that plays very well with other flavors. In many styles of beer, a touch of rye can be used to bring balance to an otherwise one-directional taste. For this beer, though, we started with the rye and piled it on, ensuring it would play first fiddle. The rest of the ingredients - the base, dark, and caramel malts, along with the Czech Saaz hops - were selected for their ability to highlight the rye and play off of its boldness. Since large quantities of rye can sometimes yield an unpalatable harshness, the finishing touch on this brew was to nitrogenate rather than carbonate. The creaminess of the nitrogen pour smoothes the edge, making for very gentle, yet full-bodied beer. We hope you enjoy.

Nitraberry invokes the spirit of a delicate blackberry sorbet. It's a little sweet and a little tart, with a touch of cream and just the right amount of blackberry goodness. We start in the lab with a secret blend of natural ingredients to add a slight pucker. Then we add blackberries before we do what shockingly few breweries in the country can and bottle it with nitrogen for a smooth, velvety mouthfeel. #Science.

It's all about choosing a dream. Once the decision was made to open a brewery, we knew there could be no more appropriate a name for our founding beer. We combined three hop varieties over a ninety minute boil in three separate additions and a massive amount of hops added for the dry-hop. The smooth malt profile lets the hops do the talking. It's complex and intricate, yet completely accessible--a labor of love to be shared with the world.

True to his name, Kent took a Belgian Abbey Single, upped the ABV and added some rye malt to create a great session beer. As you take a sip, the Belgian yeast and rye malt dance on your tongue. The sweetness of the Belgian yeast hits first, but is quickly balanced against the forward flavors of the rye malt.

Our Red Velvet oatmeal stout is a mind-bending beer. The Sculpin fish has poisonous spikes on its fins that can give a strong sting. Ironically, the meat from a Sculpin is considered some of the tastiest. Our Sea Rose tart cherry wheat ale is a fresh take on fruit beers. Originally conceived during an employee-led R&D brew, it's one of our most imaginative recipes yet. It's approachable, yet unexpected "exactly what we love to brew."

Sour Wench

Style Fruit / Vegetable Beer

ABV

Time

Sour Wench was a Home Brew Mart recipe that we made every year for the Southern California Home brewers Fest in Temecula. This Blackberry Ale was originally developed by Ballast Point's original Master Brewer Peter A'Hearn and Colby Chandler. While interning in Germany, Peter fell in love with the Berliner Weiss style of beer. A beer made with a procedure in which the mash was soured. The tartness of the Oregon State Marion Blackberries, at one pound per gallon, was a perfect addition for this sour style. Sour Wench is not aged in oak barrels. In the end, it's a great bridge beer into the sour styles.

Bourbon Barrel Quad (BBQ) Style Quadrupel (Quad) ABV 11.8 Time

Based loosely on the Smokestack Series' The Sixth Glass, this abbey-style quadrupel is separated into a number of oak bourbon barrels where it ages for varying lengths of time, some for up to three years. Cherries are added to make up for the "angel's share" of beer lost during barrel aging. Selected barrels are then blended for optimum flavor. The resulting beer retains only very subtle cherry characteristics, with toffee and vanilla notes coming to the fore.

Noble Prize Style American Double / Imperial Pilsner ABV 7.2 Time

Inspired by our very first collaboration project, Noble Prize Imperial Pilsner is brewed using a starkly simple recipe combined with a painstakingly complex brewing process resulting in an imperial pilsner of subtle elegance and delicately balanced contrasts. Pour a pint of s'wheat caroline and your eyes will be greeted by an inviting yellow-orange haze that (as luscious-looking as it is) can only hint at the delicious taste to come. this well-balanced ale features notes of fruity sweetness and a hoppy nature that's flavorful but far from bitter. pair that profile with a silky smooth finish and we think you'll agree, s'wheat caroline is a real winner. Just like the uw students who put all their knowledge, ingenuity and passion into creating this beer. fortunately for all of us, they're willing to share. S'WHEAT CAROLINE is a limited release, so be sure to get 'em while they're cold! Look for this brew on tap and in 6-packs, while they last!
